SELENITE LANDSCAPING AND PROPERTY GRIDDING

Mark has placed the center beacons at Tesuque.

CRYSTALLINE PHOENIX™ selenite originates in a massive, solid deposit in southern New Mexico. Selenite, or hydrous calcium sulfate, is the clear to milky crystalline form of gypsum, with a hardness of 2, and weighs approximately 180 pounds per cubic foot. The selenite deposit is surrounded by a massive deposit of CRYSTALLINE PHOENIX™ alabaster, white with thin grey bands.

The deposit has been laid down in a complex array of interlocking, massive crystals, the largest encountered to date estimated to be in excess of two tons. The largest crystal actually removed from the deposit weighs in excess of 1500 pounds. Each selenite crystal is comprised of compressed laminations or sheets of crystal, with the laminations being so compressed in the purest crystals that they are undetectable. A unique characteristic of this CRYSTALLINE PHOENIX™ deposit is the occasional vein of crystallized gypsum in the form of beautiful and delicate “gypsum coral,” that looks exactly like a coral formation. The largest piece of “gypsum coral” removed to date weighs over 300 pounds.

In a landscaping application, selenite has been found to add beauty and presence as well as providing clearing of and removal of negative energy at a site. In “Edgar Cayce Guide To Gemstones Minerals, Metals, and More, by Shelly Kaehr, PhD,” it states, “Selenite, as I like to call it, is one of the most powerful stones of the New Age. It brings light into the energetic bodies and instantly clears all chakras. It is one of the few stones that does not ever need to be cleansed. It can be used to cleanse other stones as well.”

Selenite landscaping and gridding pieces carry the metaphysical energy of both gypsum and selenite. According to Melody in “Love is in the Earth,” the reference book on metaphysical properties of the mineral kingdom, gypsum “is considered the lucky stone. It provides a strong influence for bringing good fortune.” Melody lists numerous health benefits of working and living with selenite, including “to facilitate regeneration of the cellular structure” and “to extend ones life span.” Katrina Raphaell, in her “Crystal Trilogy” writes extensively about the benefits of using selenite in crystal healing, and in “The Crystalline Transmission,” states “that this crystal is endowed with a special ability to alter the very nature of physical matter.” And according to Simmons and Ashian in “The Book of Stones,” selenite clears or bridges blockages and densities in the energy field. This phenomenon has been observed by metaphysical healers, wherein selenite removes the negative energies of an area or space.

CRYSTALLINE PHOENIX™ has performed more than a dozen landscaping and gridding applications in Texas, Colorado, Arizona, Iowa, and New Mexico. The properties gridded have ranged in size from a city lot to ranches of 50 and 75 acres, using from several hundred pounds of selenite to approximately 4,000 pounds of selenite and “gypsum coral.”

Placement of the selenite at optimum points in the landscape is necessary to maximize their energetic benefits. Trudy Ann Baker of CRYSTALLINE PHOENIX™ is a master at reading energetic uses of selenite and is available to assist in optimum placement of the pieces in any installation. The benefits of this selective placement include energetic clearing of the physical property and its residents, as well as many others, depending upon the specifics of the site and its surroundings.

What is a “Gridding”? by Trudy Ann Baker

All property has its own history. The residual “memory” of human events, even an argument, is “registered” where it took place. That there is memory of the history of a site is a pretty safe assumption, even if this history is simply plant or mineral (like drought, flood, fire, etc.). Most of us find locations where we feel good and those where we are uncomfortable. This is one of the reasons. Some history is beneficial to those living at a site and some is not.. A “gridding” involves tuning into a property and the surrounding area to see how the energies affect both the individuals and the area. The property knows what is needed for clearing its own history and supporting the current inhabitants in their individual lives. It guides us where to put what kinds of stones, how big they need to be and, with the input of the inhabitants, how those stones will be programmed (health, joy, abundance, support of one’s spiritual work or artistic path, or simply for one’s highest good -- the programming possibilities are endless).

So far, all of our gridding projects have called for 75 to 100 pound selenite pieces at the major perimeter corners and 50 to 75 pound pieces at any other boundary angles of the property and on either side of all driveways. A selenite “beacon” is positioned in the interior of the property supported by several other stones. The selenite can clear, harmonize and nurture the property. Certain other support stones assist in maintaining this clearing and in supporting the inhabitants in their life path and other programming choices . In addition, selenite is often useful at the outside corners of buildings and sometimes in the corner of rooms, depending on the structure’s history.

Ideally, selenite would be programmed and inserted into the foundation corners of the structure during construction, again with other appropriate support stones.

A completed gridding affects a much larger area than just the property where the stones are placed. We have noticed that our griddings in many diverse locations have energetically connected with each other, creating an even larger grid of light. This is perhaps the greatest benefit of all - the potential for supporting our entire precious planet!
